Recognizing that the 2030 Agenda is guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, including full respect for international law, and is grounded in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, international human rights treaties, the United Nations Millennium Declaration[14] and the 2005 World Summit Outcome, and that it is informed by other instruments, such as the Declaration on the Right to Development[15],

Taking into consideration the report of the Secretary-General on critical milestones towards coherent, efficient and inclusive follow-up and review at the global level[16], and recognizing that the availability of, and access to, high-quality disaggregated data is essential for measuring progress towards and achieving the Sustainable Development Goals,

Reaffirming that the promotion and protection of and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all, which are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated, should be mainstreamed into all policies and programmes aimed at the eradication of poverty and should achieve sustainable development,

Reaffirming also that sustainable development is a central goal in itself, and that sustainable development, in its economic, social and environmental aspects, constitutes a key element of the overarching framework of the United Nations,

Reaffirming further that eradicating poverty in all its forms and dimensions, including extreme poverty, is the greatest global challenge and an indispensable requirement for sustainable development,

Reaffirming the commitment to gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls in the Programme of Action and the 2030 Agenda, stressing that the achievement of full human potential and of sustainable development is not possible if women and girls continue to be denied the full realization of their human rights and opportunities, and stressing also that population and sustainable development
