

Statement on Agenda Item 5 at Forty-ninth Session of the U.N. Commission on Population and Development

He Zhaohua

Deputy Director of Department of Family Planning Development

groups, while also encouraging the participation of enterprises and civil society organizations in poverty eradication. Economic growth should be emphasized as a priority task, including increasing people's income, and improving their living standards.

(II) Comprehensively promoting social progress, and safeguarding fairness and justice. It is important to pursue inclusive growth and ensure that the fruits of development are fairly shared by all. Higher quality employment should be promoted

A fairer and more sustainable social security system should be put in place. It is also important to guarantee people's right to education and realize universal education at a

... 0.4% ...

... accounted for 56.1% of China's population, 1.2% more than that in 2014

Chinese government increased subsistence allowances benefits for entitled

Mr. Chairman, according to the solemn pledge made by Chinese President Xi

[REDACTED]