

No multilateral, regional or multilateral agreements related to international terrorism have been concluded by Portugal in recent years. It should be noted that at the bilateral level, cooperation agreements on combating organized crime and terrorism are under negotiation with several countries.

With regard to incidents caused by international terrorism in the Portuguese territory and criminal prosecutions and sentencing, it should be stated that no incidents occurred in the last decade. It should be only referred that, in 2019, a foreign citizen was condemned in a first instance court for recruiting individuals in Portugal for the radical Islamic State group.