

Summit of the Future
President of the Republic of Latvia
H.E. Mr Girts Tadmaks
23 September 2024

Mister President of the General Assembly,

Excellencies,

The world is changing, bringing along new opportunities and challenges for our societies. We need to be ready to adapt to the new realities.

That is why we are here. For our joint commitment to effective

Agenda for Peace, we need a new approach to the evolving security landscape.

Achieving sustainable development for all and leaving no one behind are commitments we made in 2015. The overall progress towards Agenda 2030 is too slow. We must be more decisive and bolder in our commitment to these goals.

Allow me to highlight a few points:

Digital and emerging technologies can help to reach our goal of sustainable future. The Global Digital Compact is our path to inclusive digital transformation, where human rights are in the centre. When used responsibly, technologies can be a catalyst of sustainable development and social transformation.

Our commitment to combat climate change and sea-level rise must be carried out. For some countries it is a matter of peace and security. For others – a question of existence. Improving the long-term resilience is of utmost importance.

Gender equality and empowerment of women is a requirement for sustainable development. Latvia is a strong advocate for the Women, Peace and Security agenda. Especially focusing on the elimination of war-related sexual violence.

Full and meaningful participation of the youth in decision-making is important. Youth always remind us to involve them in building the future. It is our future, but it will be their present.

Let's listen to the youth and deliver on our commitment to protect the generations to come.

The United Nations is the only truly global organization. It is the core of multilateral system uniting all sovereign states. It has an essential role to maintain international peace and security.

But the frameworks we have built need urgent revision. International institutions must become more representative. It needs to

As a member of the Accountability, Coherence and Transparency Group, Latvia strongly supports the strive to improve the working methods of the Security Council.

The permanent members of the Security Council must uphold their responsibility to protect peace and security. Especially Russia, which continues to wage its brutal war of aggression against Ukraine.

Ladies and gentlemen,

If we deliver on these commitments and the Pact for the Future, it will echo through generations.

Latvia is prepared to do its promised part and shoulder the responsibility towards safe, equal and sustainable future. Our commitment to the international rules-based order is driving also our bid for a non-permanent seat on the United Nations Security Council at the 2025 elections.

Thank you.
