

UNITED NATIONS,

By the late fifties, therefore, codification efforts in the two strands – “substantive” and “jurisdictional” – had effectively stopped. In 1968 and 1974, the Secretary-General attempted to bring the attention of the General Assembly back to these issues, and the International Law Commission did the same in 1977, initially to no

UNITED NATIONS, OFFICE OF LEGAL AFFAIRS

